Off Campus Entertainment

Whether it's a house party, a bar, or club that you're heading to, Boston nightlife proves itself worthy for a college town.

The Solo Cup, a classic, or a 40, the attention getter? If the party is crowded a Solo Cup could be hard to find. Usually one guy who is nowhere to be found needs five bucks before you can get your fill. If you stand by the keg all night you might be able to get more than your share of beer. However, you could also buy a cup, fill it once, and return to find that large tub is tapped, the ultimate buzz kill. Or, you can take a detour on your way to the party and pick up a 40 ounce bottle or two of malt beverage and be set for the night. You come prepared, you don't have to stand in line, if the keg is finished your night goes strong regardless, and usually one or two is enough for most social drinkers to have a good night. A St. Lile's or Steel Reserve has a higher percentage of alcohol than normal beer, and they're cheap, running an average of three dollars each. In an age where college kids drink for the purpose of getting drunk, a 40 may prove to be more economical.

Drinking Games: Beer Pong/Beruit and Quarters

There will forever be a battle among the Huskies about the name of the game. In New England, it's known as Beruit, except technically Beruit is played with quarters. On the other hand, NU's many out of state students refer to it as Beer Pong even though that's supposedly played with paddles. Whatever you call it, it's a great game in the sense that you end up drinking whether you've won or lost the game. Rules can be different everywhere that you go so be sure to ask what the house plays. Probably the most popular drinking game ever, this spawns tournaments and even makes or breaks friendships across college campuses nationwide! The less controversial Quarters can get boring if everyone playing is no good. However, the young man pictured above certainly keeps the game moving since he can make his shot without looking.

Students find ways to drink as fast as possible. The funnel, standard chug, and a kegstand. Some believe that college students binge drink because they're stupid, and we say that it gives us a break from working so hard. What's the truth?

ough about parties. What about bars and clubs? or such a huge college town, Boston is also very strict about underage kids using fake IDs. A recent development has banned everyone under 21 from even entering most entertainment venues except certain occasions, like some concerts. When students finally turn 21, they can go out and pay for overpriced drinks and get all sweaty dancing in a crowded environment. The good news however, is that someone always cleans up after your friends, you don't have to worry about waking up roommates who have CO-OP in the morning and nobody's breaking your favorite shot glasses or puking in our bathroom.

NU CLASSICS

Northeastern adopted the nickname "Huskies" in 1927, and the first Husky appeared on campus on March 4 of that year. He came to Boston's North Station by train from Alaska and was greeted by more than 1,000 students and the University band. Classes were canceled for the afternoon, and King Husky was paraded with police escort for the four miles to campus.

Dear Class of 2007:

With pride and pleasure, on behalf of the faculty and trustees of Northeastern University, I congratulate you on reaching this milestone in your life and wish you every success on the journey that lies ahead.

As you leave Northeastern, I hope you see your time here as the beginning of your learning, not the end. There will always be more to know, deeper levels of understanding and higher levels of performance to attain. Keep growing and searching for knowledge, for truth, and for beauty with the same energy with which you chase all your dreams.

I hope you will seek wisdom and compassion even as you pursue knowledge and skill. As you discover, make use of your findings. As you learn, teach. As you succeed, share. What you have acquired here can make your community and the entire world a better place.

I hope, too, that you will keep a place in your heart for Northeastern just as you have earned a permanent place among us. We want to be a continuing part of your life and your personal and professional growth. You are joining generations of graduates, linked to one another through a common bond — the unique educational experience that Northeastern provides.

With you now in the vanguard, this University, this family of Northeastern, will flourish and prosper anew in the years to come.

Sincerely,

Joseph E. Aoun
President

You Know You're From Northeastern When...

You're no longer a freshman, but you have no idea what year you are.

You know that the phrase "Meet me at Our House" involves going to a bar.

You've spent countless hours of your life attempting to navigate the monstrosity known as Holmes/Nightingale/Meserve/Lake Hall.

You recognize the entire staff of Huntington Liquors.

You smile when you see a girl carrying a red keychain.

Activities Period = Naptime

You got drunk off of a scorpion bowl at Tiger Lily's before your 21st.

You don't know how to get to Parsons Field.

You know there's a frat house behind the Texaco Station...and you've been there once...only once.

You claim to know someone who put laundry detergent in the Stetson East fountain.

You refuse to go to BC unless someone's driving.

You know there's a difference between Beirut and Beerpong, and consider yourself to be an expert at both.

You're a senior, but you still don't know how to navigate the tunnel system.

You live in Roxbury and you pay over $40,000 a year to attend private school.

You know someone who jumped into the reflecting pool by the Christian Science Center.

You're comfortable with the terms "middler", "co-op", and "no-op", even if your parents aren't.

The idea of Kegs-n-Eggs sounds perfectly reasonable, especially on Marathon Monday.

You've tried to get into the NASA anti-gravatational room in the Egan Research Center.

It drives you crazy that there's no cell phone reception in the Snell classrooms.

After three co-ops, you've made over $20,000, but managed to spend almost all of it living in Boston.

You know half a dozen shortcuts to Lansdowne Street.

You'll skip your 9:15 a.m. Intro to Sociology, but never scuba diving or yoga class.

You can tell when the next E-line train is arriving by counting the number of people standing on the platform.

You think the phrase "Higher Tuition. Richer Freeland" is hilarious.

"Don't worry, I'll fac!"

Facebook has become one of the most efficient and freaky ways for college students to socialize. I was a junior in high school when MySpace became popular, but I was out of the loop because all of my older friends had Facebook and could flirt with their classmates without creepy old men trying to "friend" them. Yes- "friend" has become a verb. What the hell?

I think it's safe to say that we are the Facebook generation. By the time we have kids, Facebook will no longer be a safe means of communication, as it's already crossing many lines that should have been left alone. It's one thing to look at pictures that a Facebook friend posts; it's quite another to be ALERTED when someone you know writes on someone else's wall. A recent Facebook development called the "news feed" summarizes your friends' latest actions, making it much easier to stalk them (intentionally or otherwise) since you're automatically alerted as to what they're up to without checking profiles. There are some things that we just don't need to know about each other. Strangers know when you're single before your boyfriend does, which can certainly cause a few problems. Thank God for privacy settings.

I deactivated my Facebook account for a couple of months, and actually I didn't miss it much. The only big change was that I procrastinated less and got more phone numbers (both positive things). However, "Facebooking" is like any other addiction....you're glad to clean up for a while, but you were really just taking a break.

Once I was a Facebook master; but now that I'm back (yes I gave in...I'm on co-op and have some down time on my computer, okay? ), I don't even know how to use it! I'm getting bitten by zombies and vampires and slowly duplicating my MySpace account with options like "Top Friends". Why are you doing this to me, Facebook? I used to like you because you were different from MySpace, but Top Friends just encourages catty jealousy; your friends know who they are, or at least they should.

I've abbreviated the term to just "book"; and I continue to have a love-hate relationship with it. Every new addition makes some aspects of communication easier while hindering others, like the fact that it's no longer exclusive to college students. My teachers, advisors, and younger siblings are my Facebook friends and I don't like it one bit. Facebook was supposed to be for me and about me, but now I have to censor myself because the wrong picture or phrase in my profile could get me into some serious trouble. We live in a world where people are constantly affected by the choices of others, and until Facebook tones down the creep factor, I'll be itching to deactivate it once more-- but for good this time. If it really comes down to it, I guess I'll have to keep in touch with those I need to and will have to (gasp!!!) actually call or talk to someone in person! Do I have the courage???

WHAT HAPPENED IN...

2002-2003

The 2002-2003 school year was a series of ups and downs for Northeastern. The year began with an announcement that Northeastern was ranked as the number one university for internships and co-ops. The mood was quickly sobered, however, when the news came out that Janet P. Mackie, a Residence Director, had suddenly died. Students were aided in cheering up by the arrival of Wendy's in the Curry Student Center, but then once again shocked when a Northeastern professor claimed to be "blacklisted" due to his views about political unrest in the Middle East. Tensions rose even further on campus as the possibility of a war with Iraq became more severe, and students rallied together in protest. Once again, however, it was food that helped to lift the mood, as it was announced that Dunkin' Donuts would be coming to campus. Vice President of Student Affairs Karen Rigg then announced her plans to take an early retirement, and police were called in to investigate a bomb threat in Dodge Hall. The Renaissance Parking Garage on Columbus Ave. announced that it would be open 24 hours a day in order to help alleviate some of the school's parking problems, but that was no consolation to the students who were forced to cancel their study abroad plans due to the outbreak of SARS. The African American Institute celebrated its 35th anniversary during this school year, while students mourned the homicide of James H. Cassidy. The Hillel House also celebrated an anniversary this year, its 40th, but students were again upset when it was announced that there would be a change in the director of the Law, Policy, and Society PhD program. Further upset was caused when Northeastern lost two more students, Nathan Travis Unruh and Steven Jacob Gacek.

AROUND THE WORLD

Below are just a few of the many major events that happened outside Northeastern in 2002 and 2003, from across the nation to around the world.

AXIS OF EVIL

President Bush's first State of the Union address illustrates his desire to expand the struggle against terrorism. He labels Iran, Iraq, and North Korea "an axis of evil."

NIGHTCLUB FIRE

A tragic fire at a Warwick, RI night club left 97 dead and more than 100 wounded when the popular 80's band Great White encountered a malfunction with their pyrotechnics during a show.

SMOKING BAN

A smoking ban, mandated in 80 municipalities in Massachusetts, made it illegal for patrons to smoke inside of bars, restaurants, and clubs. The idea behind the ban is to deter the effects of secondhand smoke.

SOME WILD FIRES

This was the second-worst wildfire season for the western United States in over 50 years. The fires were caused by heat, drought, and lightning. Over seven million acres of forest burned.

After months of heated debate about how to pressure Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, especially on the issue of his alleged weapons of mass destruction program, the U.S.-led coalition on March 19 attacked the Middle Eastern country. The ensuing military campaign included the large-scale aerial bombing of Baghdad dubbed "shock and awe," the controversial rescue of POW Army Pfc. Jessica Lynch and the fall of Baghdad. In summer and into the fall, U.S. President George W. Bush and his chief international ally, British Prime Minister Tony Blair, fended off criticism about a lack of recovered chemical, biological or nuclear weapons and continued bloodshed. Yet they, and much of the world, rejoiced in December after Saddam's capture.

WHAT HAPPENED IN...

2003-2004

The 2003-2004 school year started off by introducing Ed Klotzbier, formerly he Director of University Communications, as the interim Vice President for Student Affairs. The Information Services, meanwhile, were busy trying to protect the university's computer server from a string of new viruses. The beginning of the year had a somber point, however, when freshman Abby Kathleen Carter died in her dorm room. The administration cracked down on students for file sharing, and a new Indian restaurant made an appearance in the Curry Student Center. Also new to campus was the Squash Busters Badger and Rosen Facility, located on Columbus Ave. A wave of crime hit Northeastern, as a string of sexual assaults were reported and a former student was arrested for armed robbery. Claims were made that Northeastern's leased properties weren't habitable, and yet another student was lost to Northeastern - Anthony R. Filocamo, a sophomore. The new position of Coordinator of Sexual Assault Services was filled, while several students were arrested during the riots which took place after the Yankees beat the Red Sox in Game 7 of the American League Championships. The administration was left with holes after Joseph Murphy, the treasurer, retired, but it was announced that the housing guarantee would be extended to include Middlers. Klotzbier was made the permanent VP for Student Affairs, while OSCCR revamped its program. The SGA passed a bill to cap tuition increases, and the Curry Student Center was faced with a blackout. Emergency phones were made more visible throughout campus, but students once again were mourning the death of a classmate when Edwin Keach was killed in a car crash. The student center faced further problems when a sprinkler pipe burst, and heat failure in student apartments made the winter almost unbearable. The SGA tested the reliability of the school's escort service, and more students were arrested during riots following the Patriots' Super Bowl victory. To combat underage drinking, many dorms were given age restrictions, while some students worked to create a website that would raise suicide awareness. Students were yet again sent into mourning with the death of Walter Dedrick, and the Northeastern University Press was shut down. Two students were injured in a hit-and-run on campus, while Northeastern activists held a march for women's reproductive rights. Further mourning ensued when Felix del Greco, a Northeastern student, died serving in Iraq, and the Curry Student Center began work renovating its Ballroom. It was announced that "Speare Commons" would be opening in the fall, and more officers were hired for the NUPD.

Saddam Hussein was captured after a tip-off led American troops to a small, underground hole concealed next to farm buildings near the former leader's hometown of Tikrit. He was held in a so-called "spider hole", which was camouflaged with bricks and dirt and covered with polystyrene and a carpet. He put up no resistance although armed with a pistol. The hole was six-to-eight feet deep, with enough space for a person to lie down, and an air vent and extractor fan. Along with the former Iraqi dictator, troops discovered $750,000 in $100 bills, two AK-47 machine guns and a briefcase of documents.

AROUND THE WORLD

Below are just a few of the many major events that happened outside Northeastern in 2003 and 2004, from across the nation to around the world.

TARGETING TERROR

President Bush's State of the Union Address centered around the need for his "War on Terror".

THE GOVERNATOR

Arnold Schwarzenegger gave up his movie-star career to become the governor of California.

GAY MARRIAGE AN ISSUE

The debate continued on Beacon Hill regarding the issue of gay marriage versus civil unions.

THE CURSE IS BROKEN

The Boston Red Sox became the first in baseball history to rally from a 3-0 series deficit to win the American League pennant, the comeback made that much sweeter given they steamrolled the Yankees to do it. The Sox then rolled into the World Series and swept the St. Louis Cardinals, breaking the 86 year "curse."

WHAT HAPPENED IN...

2004-2005

The year began on a somber note as students mourned the loss of two students, Matthew Tasker and Ashmead Arjune. Helping to keep students' minds off this loss were student political leaders, who were rallying students to vote in the upcoming November Presidential elections. Outtakes and the Stetson West dining hall were both renovated, and Speare Commons opened its doors. Nine Orientation Leaders were forced to resign after it was discovered that they'd all been drinking underage, and the Marino center decided to remain open 24 hours a day. The Provost's Office started working to spread Northeastern's reputation and connections around the globe, while the Northeastern University Deaf Club was struggling to get interpreter funding. A string of sexual assaults prompted the University to work to spread student awareness, while some professors resisted the new mandate that they post their course syllabi online. Extra members of the NUPD and the BPD were called in to join forces and ensure that there would be no repeats of last year's riots after the Red Sox faced the Yankees in the World Series, and parts of Northeastern's campus finally adopted the use of wireless technology. The Student Government Association lobbied for longer library hours and additional study space, while the Resident Student Association worked to put together regulations for smoking near building entrances, to go along with the newly announced ban on smoking in dorm rooms. Students then heard further bad news when Jaii Aggarwal died in a car crash. Northeastern officials struggled to control crowding in the Student Center by high school students, and the Northeastern University Press found a new home as part of the University Press of New England. West Village encountered a series of problems when a pipe burst in West G, and heating valves caused a stench in the WV Quad. The University Health and Counseling Services center hired a new Director, and the Curry Student Center celebrated its 40th birthday. West Village was again a topic of complaint when new keyless locks were installed, but students' spirits were soon lifted with the announcement that Winter Break would be extended by one week. The MBTA announced that it would be shutting down its Night Owl bus service, much to the dismay of late-night partiers. Snell Library provided a place for Northeastern alums to gather with the creation of the Alumni Reading Room, while University officials wondered where the best place would be to build another residence hall. NUTV began broadcasting on myNEU this year, but other areas of the internet caused trouble when students were caught using Google to plagiarize. Administrators in the Office of Government Relations and Community Affairs worked to create the position of "Community-Student Liaison," while the SGA held its first public debate. A gas explosion had students running from Kerr Hall, but some ran to Northeastern's newest sorority, Epsilon Sigma Alpha. Northeastern said goodbye to Tyler Peters, who left for Iraq, but said hello to the newly founded School of Architecture.

ricane Katrina, one of the costliest and deadliest storms in U.S. history, was considered the top story of 2005. Levees failed after Katrina made landfall east of New Orleans in the morning of August 29. New Orleans was inundated with floodwaters and much of the Gulf Coast region was devastated. More than 1,300 people died in four states. Katrina exposed inadequate preparation and a government whose response was at best. Katrina was just one storm in a record hurricane season that saw 27 named storms, surpassing the record of 1933.

AROUND THE WORLD

Below are just a few of the many major events that happened outside Northeastern in 2004 and 2005, from across the nation to around the world.

TOO CLOSE TO CALL

The 2004 Presidential Election took place on November 2, but America had to wait an extra day for news that G.W. Bush had been re-elected over John Kerry, 51 to 48 percent.

PUNISHING SADDAM

The trial of Hussein and seven co-defendants began October 19 in Baghdad, Iraq. The defendants were charged with ordering the killings and torture of more than 140 Iraqis in Dujail in 1982.

THE DEATH OF A POPE

Pope John Paul II died on April 2, 2005 at the age of 84. He had been Pope for over 26 years, the second-longest regime in history.

TERrible TSUNAMIS

The December 26, 2004, tsunami, which followed a 9.1 magnitude quake, killed more than 200,000 people in Indonesia, India, Sri Lanka, Thailand and many other countries. Entire towns and villages were swept away.

WHAT HAPPENED IN...

2005-2006

Northeastern President Richard Freeland started off the year with an announcement that he was going to resign, making this his last year in office. The University Health and Counseling Services Center reopened in the Forsyth building, just in time to console students over the death of retired professor Alan Cromer. The Times New Roman wasted no time in making their mark on campus, when they were ordered by administration to shut down their website due to content deemed "offensive." Over 100 students were reported to OSCCR when NUPD seized over 1,000 cans of beer from underage students, and a new law was proposed that would require keg buyers to give their names and addresses. A crime spree had the campus alarmed, and the Women's Studies and Graduate Consortium was called "discriminatory" after attempting to hold an event for "women of color only." A man was shot outside of the Ruggles T station, and the position of Alcohol and Other Drug Coordinator was created on campus. Fifteen members of the UHCS resigned due to "haphazard leadership," while the "Mayor of Huntington Avenue" competition returned to campus after 16 years. The Asian American Center was created on Hemenway Street, and the OSCCR finally found a new director. Northeastern Alumni enjoyed the first alumni ball, while police were called to break up a keg party at Phi Gamma Pi fraternity house, ultimately leading to the fraternity's charter being revoked. The Women's Studies program celebrated its 25th anniversary, and the University held its first event with alcohol since the 70's. Freshman William Lamar had everyone worried when he disappeared in London, and the community was shocked when a Northeastern law student represented Larry Robinson, who was convicted of killing Northeastern student Mark Belmore five years earlier. The sign language program received $4.5 million to hopefully help narrow the communication gap by hiring more interpreters, while Gnomon Copy faced a lawsuit for allegedly distributing course packs without obtaining the rights to their content. A design was finally chosen for the Veteran's Memorial, and NU & Improv'd had a very successful performance on Broadway. Students were "creeped out" to learn that their records were being sold to the military, but relieved to hear that William Lamar had returned home. West Village H won an architectural award, and Harvey Krentzman died at the age of 79. Taco Bell replaced Barnyard Chicken in the Curry Student Center, and the campus slowly became wireless-accessible. OSCCR added a medical amnesty policy to its Code of Conduct, and Ron Jeremy came to campus to talk porn with students. On-campus students were pleased with the arrival of HuskyCable, but frightened by fires in the Fens. Fire in Ell Hall burned much of the OSCCR office and was ruled arson, and the O'Bryant African American Institute on Leon Street was demolished in favor of its new location in West Village F. Students were nervous about the possibility of living in university-owned housing on Tremont Street, and irritated professors considered banning laptops in class. A body was found near campus, by the Mass. Ave. T station, and the University cut its free, one-credit physical education classes from the curriculum. The year ended well, however, with the news that Northeastern had joined the top 100 universities in the nation, ranking at number 98.

AROUND THE WORLD

Below are just a few of the many major events that happened outside Northeastern in 2005 and 2006, from across the nation to around the world.

MID-EAST FIGHTING

Israel and the Lebanon-based Hezbollah militia fought a monthlong war in the summer; more than 900 people were killed and much of southern Lebanon was battered.

CONGRESS SCANDALS

Several Republican congressmen were brought down by scandals, including Mark Foley, who resigned over sexually explicit messages sent to male pages, and Randy Cunningham, who pleaded guilty to accepting bribes from defense contractors.

BRITISH BOMB THREAT

British authorities said they narrowly thwarted a terrorist plot to bomb several jets over the Atlantic. The disclosure led to tough new restrictions on the contents of carry-on luggage.

GAS PRICES SOAR

Crude oil prices topped $60 dollars per barrel on June 23 on the New York Mercantile Exchange, a record since trading began in 1983. Prices continued to soar, temporarily topping $70 dollars per barrel in late August, with prices at the pumps averaging $3.07 per gallon.

It started in 2003 as a supposedly straightforward drive. People Saddam Hussein deteriorated during 2006 into a searingly complex and savage struggle, with Iraqis by the thousands killed in sectarian reprisal attacks and the U.S. military death toll nearing 3,000. President Bush dropped talk of "staying the course" but balked at embracing many of the suggestions of a bipartisan study group; Iraqi authorities struggled to assert control and avoid fracture.

WHAT HAPPENED IN...

2006-2007

The 2006-2007 school year at Northeastern was filled with changes and new faces. President Richard Freeland decided to depart, and was replaced by Dr. Joseph Aoun in a large-scale "Northeastern Illuminated" inauguration celebration. Northeastern students and faculty watched the construction and opening of the much-anticipated West Village F, an ultra modern academic building and dormitory exclusively housing freshman honors students. The construction of the facility was not without controversy, however, as it resulted in the closing of the original stand-alone building which housed the John D. O'Bryant African American Institute. The Institute was reopened with new facilities within West Village F. New construction was a campus theme, including a beautiful war memorial across from Regan and the beginning of renovations in the Curry Student Center. Huskies witnessed the "deplanetization" of Pluto, leading Jesse Silverberg, a middle physics and mathematics major, to tell the Northeastern News that, "I do think that for the last 70 or 80 years having Pluto commonly considered a planet has made me ...a little bothered by its excommunication." We either hung our heads or raised our glasses in a toast when we heard that Boston had been ranked fourth in a study ranking the "35 Drunkest Cities" published by Forbes.com, beating out such cities as Las Vegas (14) and New Orleans (24). We were shocked (or maybe, not-so-shocked) by a Zogby International poll which concluded that 55 percent of college professors nationwide believe freshmen are increasingly unprepared for college-level work. Gnomon got served, sued, and settled for a cool $40K for not obtaining the necessary copyrights from publishing companies before selling course packs to Northeastern students. The Council for University Programs hosted infamous porn and reality TV show star Ron Jeremy in a debate with Craig Gross, head of the anti-pornography church, XXX Church. Jeremy, who has reportedly slept with as many as 1,200 women in his career, and Gross, whose organization is most well-known for their slogan, "Every time you masturbate, God kills a kitten", had never debated prior to this highly anticipated and successful event. Parties, planets, porn and booze... now THAT'S the right way to spend your last year at Northeastern!

"In many ways, you will lead us into the world... frankly, you're more nimble than we are."

- President Aoun, at his first Convocation

1. President Joseph Aoun at his first Mardi Gras breakfast

2. NU Students competing at Qdoba's 2nd annual Rice & Bean Pot

3. Huskies have fun at Springfest

4. The HEAT polar bear!

er Reed Army Medical Center had once been thought of as "crown jewel of military medicine." However, following this exposé of deplorable conditions and bureaucratic negligence at Walter Reed in the February 18, 2007 edition of Sunday Washington Post, severely tarnished this glowing reputation and brought widespread shock to the entire nation. Staff writers Dana Priest and Anne Hull reported on such acts of neglect as dead roaches, rotten holes in the walls, rat droppings, greasy smells, and stained carpeting. The bodies of injured soldiers from the Afghani and Iraq wars passed through Walter Reed's doors since the start of the wars have had to endure these atrocious conditions. White House and Congressional leaders were quick to express outrage and called for a speedy investigation into the problems.

AROUND THE WORLD

Below are just a few of the many major events that happened outside Northeastern in 2006 and 2007, from across the nation to around the world.

THE GREAT WHITE HUNTER

Vice President Dick Cheney accidentally shot his friend, lawyer Harry Whittington, in the face, neck and torso while quail hunting in February of 2006. The Bush administration took nearly 24 hours before publicizing the incident.

HUSSEIN HANGED

Former Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein was hanged in December 2006 for the deaths of 148 Shiites in 1982. Many videos of the execution subsequently appeared online.

NANCY'S IN THE HOUSE

Democratic Congresswoman Nancy Pelosi of California was elected speaker of the 110th Congress in January of 2007, the first woman to hold the post. Pelosi and her fellow Democrats took control of both houses for the first time since 1994.

TRAGEDY AT VA TECH

On April 16, 2007, Cho Seung-Hui, an English major at Virginia Tech, shot and killed two students in a VA Tech dormitory. He then went on to murder an additional 30 and wound fifteen students and faculty in a barricaded classroom before committing suicide.

For a long time it had seemed to me that life was about to begin--real life. But there was always some obstacle in the way, something to be gotten through first, some unfinished business, time still to be served, a debt to be paid. Then life would begin. At last it dawned on me that these obstacles were my life. -- Alfred D. Souza

Northeastern's First Annual underwear run was Thursday, October 6th, 2006. Students gathered at Speare Commons just before 10pm in the 40-degree weather and began stripping down. "It started with a small idea. From the ashes of Green E T-trains that pass by without stopping and stolen co-op summers, rose hundreds of young men and women Huskies united to run for honor and freedom. 476: the fall of Rome, 1776: independence day 1969: man first landed on the moon, 2006: the first annual underwear run." -Nick Gately, Northeastern Student

Thanks to Story Wibby & Travis Weisberger for making it all possible!

Underwear Run

"The Boston Marathon is the world's oldest annual marathon and ranks as one of the world's most prestigious road racing events. The Boston Marathon has distinguished itself as the pinnacle event within the sport of road racing by virtue of its traditions, longevity and method of gaining entry into the race (via qualification)." (www.bostonmarathon.org) The course begins in rural Hopkinton and ends locally on Boylston Street in Copley Square. Despite the terrible weather, multitudes of fans still came to witness the endurance of hundreds of participants. The best part is waiting three hours on Commonwealth Ave. to see your friends who gathered the courage to run and then finishing the last mile or two with them.

Boston Marathon

Some say that Northeastern may not have the most spirited students when it comes to supporting school athletics. However, Homecoming 2006 was a weekend that welcomed President Aoun to Northeastern with a much larger turnout than usual. King Husky lead the floats in the parade as our proud mascot. As he passed, you couldn't help but shout "Go Huskies!".

Homecoming

The Carnival

The sun shined down on Centennial Commons for Parents/Homecoming Weekend. With plenty of free food, music, and the homecoming "celebrities", the King and Queen, Northeastern students and their parents were able to enjoy the festivities. Also present was Christopher Marshall, who was elected as the 2006 Mayor of Huntingdon Avenue in the Alumni Association's brand new Alumni Center at 716 Columbus Place.

Husky fans could not have been more proud of their football players this Homecoming! Our team was victorious over the nationally ranked University of New Hampshire in triple over-time. Over ten thousand fans shouted from the stands at Parsons Field, making it one of the most spirited events Northeastern has seen in a while. Rachel Rathsburg and Sergio Marrero were crowned Homecoming King & Queen at half time and the Huskies won with a final score of 36-35 making October 21st, 2006 a day no one will ever forget!

Let's Go Huskies!

Though the NU Men's hockey team fell to future-champs BU Terriers 4-0 in the semifinals, our Huskies fought hard for a much deserved 3-2 consolation victory over Harvard in this time-honored Boston tradition. The Terriers went on to win their 28th Beanpot title against the Boston College Eagles, 2-1 in overtime.

Our Women's team wasn't able to earn NU Beanpot bragging rights, losing 4-2 to BU in the semifinals at Conte Forum and 8-0 to the Crimson women in the consolation game. The Eagles were able to win at home, 6-2 over BU.

Every year the President of Northeastern holds a late night Mardi Gras breakfast, following the tradition of "Fat Tuesday" in New Orleans. Mardi Gras came to New Orleans with the French settlers in the start of the 18th century. It is the day before Ash Wednesday, the official start of Lent in Christianity. Mardi Gras is very well known, often called "the greatest free show on earth". This year at NU, Aoun made his debut handing out beads and the ever-famous King Cake. Also present were Lucky and Tony the Tiger to cheer the cereal eating contest.

Mardi Gras!

Ahhh, spring break. A time for relaxing... spending time & making memories with good friends... traveling to exotic destinations... helping out with Habitat for Humanity or other community service organizations... earning some extra cash... HATING that you're co-op... getting shitfaced on the beach & finding pictures of yourself dancing half-naked or licking whipped cream off of someone's Facebook the following day... or maybe even just going back to your parents' house and sleeping for a week because you had money to go away with your friends. Whatever the circumstance, spring break certainly can be a rite of passage for every Husk.

Spring Break

Northeastern's largest hip hop show to date sold out the first day tickets went on sale. Performers included RJD2, Lupe Fiasco, Gym Class Heroes, and Nas. The concert, held in Matthews Arena, culminated a week of events annually sponsored by CUP (Council for University Programs). Some say that "007" was the best year for Springfest. We live in a city over 200 miles away from the Bronx, the origin of Rap music, yet thousands of NU students lives' are influenced daily by the lyrics of a Nas or Lupe Fiasco song. Others enjoyed the beats from RJD2's turntables as he blew the crowd away for the opening act. And we can't forget about Gym Class Heroes rocking their way around the stage, for they bring something else to the table, representing the same Indie label as bands such as The Academy Is..., Fall Out Boy, and Panic! At the Disco. No matter who the audience came to see, it's a safe judgement to say that all left satisfied that night.

The Cauldron is pleased to announce that the most important lesson students learned during Northeastern's 2007 Sex Week, which is typically a week of events revolving around safer sex and free condoms, was that if you want to get people's attention, hand out a magazine that features their fellow students naked and not t-shirts. The magazine was certainly entertaining, but neglected to include a schedule of events like last year. We've chosen to include the magazine's cover & photos so you can see if you're still as shocked the second time around.

STUDENT GROUPS

I joined the Times New Roman ("TNR") because the guys in that group got ahold of me and me they thought my web site was funny. I thought it was funny too, so we had somethin' common. I usually like people I have things in common with. I didn't like the guys in the Times New Roman, though. They were cool, but they didn't talk about my web site enough.

After this initial flirtation, as a middler I started attending TNR general meetings regularly. I guess I felt sorry for them. Regardless, I enjoyed the craziness that usually ensued as the TNR staffers tried to "brainstorm" ideas - usually something like a top ten list, article ideas, or fake headlines. It was fun to be around other people who had eclectic senses of humor and who enjoyed to wax poetic on ridiculous topics.

After a year as a general member, in which my articles were often published, I was invited to join the senior staff, which is what the TNR calls its editorial board. I accepted, and was officially a "junior bacon consultant" - that's what the TNR used to call its staff writers. Before long I was an influential member of the group. I began to organize writer meetings as a way to generate content, reasoning the funniest material is usually the result of a bunch of funny people kicking ideas around. The TNR began to focus less on articles submitted by one individual and more on large-scale, creative comedy.

I decided to run for King (that's what we call the group's president - get it?) of the TNR my junior year. After I was elected, I spearheaded the group's transition away from printing seven 11x17 newspapers per year, and instead decided to print three 24-page glossy magazines per year. We were not allocated the funding for this change, and had to be very creative to pull it off, but increased ad revenues, an allocation from the Resident Student Association, and some thriftiness in other areas made it work. The experience of printing a great magazine that looked and felt like other well-known comedy magazines has been one of my life's most fulfilling moments.

I've always wanted to be the editor of a comedy magazine, and life just doesn't often throw you the chance to do that kind of thing, risk-free. At Northeastern, the university funded opportunity I've long hoped to have. If I were to start my own comedy magazine - and believe me, I've considered doing so - it would cost me a tremendous overhead and would come with no guarantee of making a profit. Campus life at NU gave me that chance, and being president of TNR taught me a huge amount about management and organization.

In the TNR, I saw a group that fit my interests and that I thought I could improve. It gave me a canvas for ideas I had, to see if they could actually work. And it was a lot of fun, even if they still don't talk about my web site enough.

To the Class of 2007,

We envy you. We're underage and sophomoric, literally. We haven't had a penthouse in West Village H, we can't go to Connor's after class, and we couldn't even get into the senior week events to photograph you. Therefore, the hardest part of making this book is that we haven't yet had the same experiences you have all gone through. We had to think about our short time at Northeastern and project what we thought would be the most important and meaningful aspects of NU for you to remember. When planning the book, we gathered input from seniors and old editions of the Cauldron, and then decided on what you now have in your hands! We hope that when we're seniors, and looking back on our first publication, we'll find that we were accurate in our decision-making.

This book is for you to look at throughout the years; it is a historical document that we want you to be proud of. Maybe you weren't on the soccer team, or you never pledged a fraternity, but trust us, in twenty years you will realize that you never spent $40 so well. We want to congratulate you on reaching this milestone, and to thank you for letting us spend 2007 with you. A college degree is much more commonplace than ever before, but that doesn't take away from its significance or the respect that you deserve. Enjoy this moment because soon it will pass; this book however, will last forever.

Congratulations and good luck!

Christie & Ellen

And a BIG thank you to...

To our media advisor, Sandra Miller: thank you for showing us the ropes during our first, stressful year as editors. Your constant desire to improve this publication certainly kept us on our toes! To our amazing publishing representative, Tara Anderson: THANK YOU for always being on our side, answering each and every one of our constant questions, being an active participant in our gossip-sessions, and keeping us sane. Without you, there's no way that this book would be finished. To Bob McGrath, founder of McGrath Studios, Inc., and our amazing photographer: It is not an exaggeration to say that without the time and effort put forth by you and your staff, this book wouldn't have a sports, homecoming, Boston, commencement, or campus section (and oh yeah, the senior section, too!). Your commitment to the quality of this publication has been astounding, and we're excited to work with you next year. To Mitch Weiss, Clara Rice, and Corey Zev Holland, Craig Bailey, (and those who gave us their Co-op pictures): your photos got us out of a hard place, we appreciate your contributions more than we can describe. To Allean and Jeff over in SABO: thank you both for always answering Ellen's constant bombardment of frantic questions with patience and a smile. To George Sarikas: Thank you for always helping Ellen with budgets at 8am, proposals, and for trying to instill in her "smart sun sense". To Bob Grier and the entire Student Activities and CSC staff (especially Phil and Mike): for helping us pack, and unpack, our 125, 60 pound boxes of books; our arms could not have done it without you. To Stephen Asay, Melanie Bishop, and the rest of the Media Board: for your helpful suggestions. The Commencement Office, Office of the Registrar, Operations Desk, Office of the President, and University Relations: thank you. Without all of you, the 2007 Cauldron would not be what it is.

sincerest thanks,

Christie and Ellen

CONGRATULATIONS
NATALIE MADERO!
Class 2007

Five years ago filled with many dreams and goals, you departed from the warmth of your home and of sunny Florida to your new home at NEU in Boston. You have accomplished much more than you ever imagined, and persevered regardless of the challenges you faced. As a 2007 Grad, you are now leaving the NEU family and embarking on the next phase of your dreams. We are so very proud of the successes you have achieved as a LaCLA Scholar Recipient, Dean's List Honoree, Study Abroad Student, and your countless other achievements, but most of all we are extremely proud of the bright, determined and loving young woman we love. May God continue to Bless you in all you will become!

All our love, Mom, AJ, Grandma and Grandpa

Congratulations
Sergio!

We are so proud of
Everything you have accomplished
And the person you have become.

God Bless You!

Love, Mom, Dad, Nina and Natalie

To My One and Only Granddaughter, Arielle,

A hearty Mazel-Tov on your graduation and much luck for your future.

Love, Oma

Mazel-Tov from Aunt Rose and Uncle Richard

To Our Dearest Arielle,

From the second you were born you have brought us nothing but pride and joy. Today our hearts burst with pride as we see the beautiful, caring, giving, bright young woman you have become. Continue to be that first-rate version of yourself, instead of a second-rate version of somebody else.

You have an incredibly bright future ahead of you; believe in yourself, and the world will be yours!

*"Today is your day! Your mountain is waiting.
So...get on your way."*

All our love,
Mom and Jeff

Congratulations Mike!

All the credit to you.
You always make us proud.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Congratulations "Lindsay"

We are so proud of you.
You are a success story.

Love Forever,
Mom, Dad, and Buttercup

You have done great things and visited many places while at NU.
More accomplishments in your future.
On to graduate school!!!!

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Michelle
Congratulations

To My Daughter Jessica

On the night you were born you brought wonder and magic to the world. Now, as I watch you grow up and become your own person I look at you...your laughter...your happiness...your simplicity...your beauty...and I know that you will be able to enjoy a life of sensitivity, goodness, accomplishment, and love. I want to tell you that I am so proud of you and I dearly love you!

We have really enjoyed being a part of your NU experience. Your accomplishments are amazing! You are remarkable, Jessica, and have brought much joy into our lives. We couldn't be prouder! Now, it's time to spread your wings and fly. The world is waiting for you...Go and get it, the best is yet to come!

With joy and all our love, from your biggest fans,
Love, Mom, John, Jamie, and Nini

Congratulations, Mike!

You did it!
I am so proud of you.

Love,
Mom

Sara

You made us witness our dream. The heights by great people reached and kept, were not attained by sudden flight, but they while their companion slept were toiling upward in the nights. Keep your focus, you'll reach your goal.

Love,
Mom & Dad

Artús, Congratulations!

There's no one more proud of you today than we are. I hate to break the news though, education doesn't end with your graduation. It never ends. You will learn the same lessons in different forms many times over. The challenge is to embrace your role as a perpetual student of life.

This means giving in to the idea that you actually don't know everything that you need to. In fact, being a student requires you to surrender and be flexible. Your life has a potential to be an exciting journey, filled with thrilling moments, and astonishing experiences. It can be a thrilling ride if you are open to exploring all that is available to you. Adventure is the result of your willingness to live life with a spirit of enthusiasm. It is an experience that takes you beyond your comfort level.

Adventure is what makes your blood race and your heart beat with anticipation as you expand beyond your perceived limitations as human. It expands your horizons and takes you into new exciting worlds. Since what makes your life is up to you, you can either create a life with new experiences or stay huddled and safe. You begin to take bigger and bolder steps toward living your dreams now. On this new journey, remember that every action you take, small or big, will in some way affect the people along your journey.

Always make sure that influence is a positive one. It will be a joy to inspire someone who crosses your path... and remember, always use sunscreen...

Love, Dad, Mom, and your little sister Sylvia

Way To Go, Heather

Since the day you were born you have brought nothing but sunshine and smiles to our lives. Your love of life inspires us. An amazing love of learning and curiosity combined with confidence, respect for others, family values and a sense of independence have made you the special young woman you have become. A world of opportunity awaits you-share your talents and enjoy life's adventures (keep sending postcards)!

You're the best in the west, the north, east and south and we love you
so very much.
Mom and Dad
xoxoxoxo...

Congratulations Class of 2007!

The Office of Alumni Relations is your connection to staying in touch with Northeastern after graduation. Here are just a few services and benefits you might find useful in the near future:

Regional Chapters

With regional chapters all over the United States, Northeastern University is everywhere you want to be.

Online Community

Through the Online Community, you can connect with alumni who are willing to provide career advice and guidance based on their own experiences.

Alumni Center

You should know that your home away from home is located in the Alumni Center. The door is always open.

Reunions

Want to stay connected with your class? Get involved with your 2007 Reunion Committee! Plan your 1st year reunion and many others, and encourage your classmates to come back each year.

Class of 2007 Senior Gift

Your Northeastern experience was made possible in part by the generous support of alumni and student campaigns. Thank you to all seniors who helped provide that same opportunity to future students and honor Northeastern tradition. Your class gift provides access and resources to future generation of Northeastern Huskies. Thanks again, and GO HUSKIES!

For more information about staying connected and getting involved, please visit our website at www.northeastern.edu/alumni.

NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY FEDERAL CREDIT UNION

Jim O' Shaughnessy
Manager
NU '68
NU Hall of Fame '94

MEMBERS HELPING MEMBERS

Northeastern University Federal Credit Union (NUFCU) was founded in 1968 to help Northeastern University employees, students, alumni, and their immediate families gain access to a wide range of highly competitive financial products and services. Members help members by providing a source for low cost credit while enjoying a high rate of return on their savings. Because NUFCU is a non-profit institution, all earnings are returned to credit union members in the form of dividends and improved products and services.

Show your Husky Pride.
Stay Connected.
Give Back.
Create the future.

Congratulations Class of 2007!

The Office of Alumni Relations is your connection to staying in touch with Northeastern after graduation. Here are just a few services and benefits you might find useful in the near future:

Regional Chapters

With regional chapters all over the United States, Northeastern University is everywhere you want to be.

Online Community

Through the Online Community, you can connect with alumni who are willing to provide career advice and guidance based on their own experiences.

Alumni Center

You should know that your home away from home is located in the Alumni Center. The door is always open.

Reunions

Want to stay connected with your class? Get involved with your 2007 Reunion Committee! Plan your 1st year reunion and many others, and encourage other classmates to come along each year.

Class of 2007 Senior Gift

Your Northeastern Senior Gift was made possible in part by the generous support of alumni and student campaigns. Thank you to all seniors who helped provide that same opportunity to future students and honor Northeastern tradition. Your class gift provides access and resources to future generation of Northeastern Huskies. Thanks again, and GO HUSKIES!

For more information about staying connected and getting involved, please visit our website at www.northeastern.edu/alumni.

Northeastern Times New Roman

The cover of the TNR's fall issue, its first-ever magazine.

The cover of the TNR's spring magazine.

2006-2007 was a transitional year for the Times New Roman, NU's student comedy magazine. A young staff rose to replace the previous year's senior staff, which consisted mostly of staffers who had been with the paper when it was founded in 2003. That staff tried to push the TNR to what we felt was the next frontier — magazine format.

In December, we printed a 24-page glossy magazine (see above cover) to strong reviews, and in April, we printed a 28-page magazine to rave reviews — most agreed it was the finest issue in our history.

In the meantime, we hosted three standup comedy nights at afterHOURS, featuring TNR staffers performing standup comedy, and saw our membership grow steadily and our issues read all over campus.

The year was a very successful one for the TNR. We hope it's a steppingstone to printing quarterly magazines of at least 24 pages, while evolving into a multimedia group that hosts and participates in major events on campus.

-Steven Stites, Times New Roman president and 2007 graduate

• Working collaboratively with others to connect their disciplines to the global work place • Working collaboratively with others to support and enhance the role of Northeastern as a national research university that is student centered, practice oriented, and urban success. The mission of the Division of Cooperative Education may be expressed in three main areas:

1. To support and maintain the position of Northeastern University as a national and international leader in the field of Cooperative Education.
2. To provide comprehensive career planning services that assist members of the Northeastern University community in identifying, planning, and implementing sound career decisions.
3. To provide Northeastern University students with cooperative educational experiences that have a significant impact on their professional lives.

Cooperative Education, as Northeastern's signature program, attracts students to Northeastern University and encourages alumni/ae support of the university. Each year, the Division of Cooperative Education, in collaboration with the Office of Admissions, Career Services, Cooperative Education, and International Cooperative Education, is involved in serving Northeastern University by:

- Supporting recruitment and retention efforts.
- Assisting the Northeastern University community in connecting their disciplines to the global work place.
- Working collaboratively with others to support and enhance the role of Northeastern as a national research university that is student centered, practice oriented, and urban success.

To laugh often and much: To win the respect of intelligent people and the love of children: To earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; To be strong: To be beautiful: To find the best in others: To leave the world a bit better whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition: To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to be indeed. - Ralph Waldo Emerson

Alma Mater

Oh, Alma Mater here we throng
And sing your praises strong
Our children gather far and near
And seek your blessings dear
Fair memories we cherish now
And will always hold dear
Come, let us raise our voices strong
Northeastern we adore
All Hail Northeastern Mark the day
of Northeastern Hark the sound of our refrain
Praise the glory of our Alma Mater
May we guard it well
Stain In whatever field the battle wages
Where our joys and hopes are high
It's the Red and Black
Proud and foremost, Defiant in the sky
All Hail, Northeastern, We sing in jubilee, All Hail, Northeastern,
Free and happy, ever free: All Hail, Northeastern, We give salute to thee, Through the years, We ever will Guard your glorious destiny.

"All Hail Northeastern" was written as a song to be used for sports activities, while "Alma Mater," as used in most colleges, is a more appropriate song for formal functions. The words to the latter song were originally written by Joseph Spear, who was a math professor and later a member of the Board of Trustees. The original music used at that time was "America the Beautiful." It was decided to compose new music, which I then composed. It took us about two years, with the help of Ken
